

Cottonelle® And BLKHLTH® Recommit To Addressing Stigmas To Black Americans And Colorectal Cancer Screenings With Year Two Of GoodDownThere Campaign

Partnership to Distribute Thousands of Free Colorectal Cancer Screening Kits and Colonoscopies

NEENAH, Wis., March 1, 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- Cottonelle®, the leader in downtherecare, announces a donation of more than $900,000 to BLKHLTH®, a nonprofit organization that seeks to reduce the impact of racism on Black health, to address stigmas and reduce barriers associated with screening for colorectal cancer in recognition of March as Colorectal Awareness Month. The partnership's second year will help to continue to normalize the discussion around "down there" conversations and provide equal access to intimate health and wellness.

As experts in downtherecare, Cottonelle advocates in helping to normalize the discussion associated with "down there" conversations. Black adults are 20% more likely to be diagnosed with colorectal cancer, which contributes to a 40% higher death rate compared to white Americans.¹ The Cottonelle GoodDownThere campaign addresses these disparities by providing health educational resources and free at-home colorectal cancer screening tests.

"Systemic racism impacts Black people's access to affordable and quality healthcare and preventative care." said Matthew McCurdy, co-founder and president of BLKHLTH. "Research shows that one in three people are not up-to-date on their screenings.² However, if caught and treated early, colorectal cancer has a 90% survival rate."³

In its inaugural year, the partnership impacted thousands of lives and provided at-home screening tests in 49 out of 50 states. This year, Cottonelle and BLKHLTH intend to double their distribution goal. There are several ways to get involved:

- Visit BLKHLTH.com/GoodDownThere for resources, information on ambassadors, and how to obtain a free screening kit and/or a free colonoscopy in your area (while supplies last)⁴
- Attend BLKHLTH-hosted events throughout the year, as well as events hosted by their local market ambassadors, to receive a free colorectal screening kit
- Follow @Cottonelle and @BLKHLTH for information on upcoming virtual and in-person education events and speakers
- Encourage loved ones to get screened by tagging your family and friends on social media using hashtag #GoodDownThere
- Support BLKHLTH when buying Cottonelle, and other products from Amazon, using AmazonSmile for a no-cost-to-you donation

"Tackling uncomfortable conversations associated with downthere care is our biggest priority and as a brand, we exist to build a world of better intimate wellness for all," said Ada Zavala, senior brand manager, Cottonelle Brand. It is crucial for Cottonelle to continue our partnership with BLKHLTH, raise awareness and resources about Colorectal Cancer for Black Americans."
